Provost Marshal General's Repor The report of this officer, which has just appeared, is full of interesting statistics. The total enrolment under the act of March

The total enrolment under the set of March 3, (the year is not given), was, in the loyal States, 2,254,663 men, not including 1,000,516 then under arms. Under the Bureau 1,120,621 men were raised at a cost of $2.40 per man. Before the Bureau was organized, 1,264,5620 cost 224.01 per man. The desertions arrested and returned to the army numbered 76,626. As to desertion, the report says:

"It appears, beyond dispute, that the crime of desertion is especially characteristic of troops from large cities, and of the districts which they supply with recruits. The ratio per thousand of desertions to credits throughout the loyal States is 62.01. In the State of New York it rises to 89,06, and in the small States near New York city it is still higher. In New Jersey it is 107,00; in Connecticut, 117.23; in New Hampshire, 112.22. Yet the general ratio of New Rogland is three days. It is probable that a more minute examination of the statistics of the army than has yet been made, would reveal the fact that desertion is a crime of foreign, rather than native birth, and that but a small proportion of the men who forsook their colors were Americans. It is a notorious circumstance that the great mass of the professional bounty-jumpers were Europeans. In general, the manufacturing States, as, for instance, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, and New Jersey, rank high in the column of desertion; and this result is to be attributed not only to the fact that such States are dotted with towns and cities, but to the secondary fact that these towns and cities are crowded with foreigners. The respectable and industrious part of this population did, indeed, produce a mass of faithful troops; but with these were mixed by an unusually large percentage of men whose presence was necessary to the subsistence and protection of their families. In further explanation of this fact, something may be attributed to a lax state of discipline natural in border regiments, serving for the most part in a somewhat irregular defence of the co. "The most fruitful source of casualties in "The most fruitful source of casualties in the regular army is desertion; it reaches the high ratio of 244.25 per thousand, while in the volunteers it is but 62.51. The inference is irresistible that the men who enlisted in the regular service were far interior in character to the troops furnished by the States; and it will probably be found, on examination, that they were more commonly levied in the large cities, and embraced a far larger proportion of foreigners. The regular service did not secure that noble class of native born soldiers which local pride and State patriotism poured into the volunteer organisations.

The casualties in the entire military fore The casuattes in the entire limitary torce of the nation during the war of the rebellion, as shown by the official muster rolls and monthly returns, have been complete, showing, among other terms, 5,221 commissioned officers, and 90,868 enlisted men killed in ac-

Poland, in this county. He had a reputation for meanness second to that of no person in his neighborhood. He had a wife and three children. He quarrelled with his wife and sued for a divorce, which he was unable to obtain. The wife also failed in a similar attempt. Waterhouse then deserted his wife, who subsequently became a pauper in the town of Brunswick. Her three children were placed under the care of persons in Poland, and have there grown up. Years passed without news of the scandalous husband.

Something more than a year ago Judge Luce, of Auburn, received information of the death of Freeman Waterhouse, in Idaho Territory, whither it seems he skedaddled after deserting his wife. He died after amassing a fortune of from twenty to twenty-five thousand dollars in gold, leaving, apparently, no heirs behind him. The Judge of Probate in Idaho wrote to Maine for information. Judge Luce at once looked up the facts, and reported them, and was retained by the miser's wife, a pauper in Brunswick, to recover the property. The case has been pending in Idaho the past year, and has resulted in a verdict which will give the entire property to the rightful heirs. Mrs. Waterhouse will probably receive $6,000 in gold, and her three children the remainder of the property.

The result shows that Mrs. Waterhouse was very fortunate in not securing a divorce from the scapegoat, her husband.—Levois-Dratu of an Edinburgh Criebalty.—The Scotsman gives a pleasant sketch of the life of the late Bernard Barker, known in his own neighborhood as the "King of the Cowgate." He was renowned for his benevolence. Often eccentric, he never failed to aid the poor. His public charities were large in comparison with his means; but his private benefactions were innumerable. The Scotsman says: "On Saturday evenings he regularly laid in a large store of loaves, which he unestentatiously distributed among poor families on the Sunday; and had it not been for Mr. Barker's loaf, many a beggar, prohibited from 'going out' on Sanday, would have had to go without food all day. But it was not alone by direct charity that Mr. Barker effected good. He encouraged honesty, frugality, the habit of well-doing, and thrift among the laboring classes, amid whom he dwelt. He became banker on behalf of the poor—invited them to lodge small sums with him at stated periods, to enable them to pay the rent, purchase a new suit of clothes, or any such thing. It is not surprising that the funeral procession of such a man should have 'extended for upward of a mile, from five to eight persons walking abreast.'" eight persons walking abreast."

eight persons walking abreast."

"THE BEAR AND RAGGED STAFF."—Hotten's
"History of Signboards" says: The Bear and ragged Staff is still the sign of an inn at Cumnor, to which a historic interest is attached owing to its connection with the dark tragedy of poor Amy Robaart, who, in this very house, fell a victim to that stony-hearted adventurer, Robert Dudley, Earl of Leicester. Sir Walter Scott has introduced the house in the first chapter of "Kenilworth."
The power the Warwick family once enjoyed gave this sign a popularity which has existed to the present day, though the race of old Nevil, and the kings he made and unmade, have each and all passed away. Its heraldic designation has been better preserved than is the case of some other signs; only in one instance, at Lower Bridge street, Chester, it has been altered into the Boar and Billet. Sometimes the sign of the Bear and Ragged Staff, we may inform the reader, is jocularly spoken of as the Angel and Flute.

"A remarkable exception of the rule above noted is Kansas, which was a frontier State during nearly the whole contest, and which nevertheless, shows the highest battle mortality of the table. But the population of Kansas is a peculiarly pugnacious one, rendered such by its erigin and history. The same singularly martial disposition which induced above half the able-bodied men of the State to enter the army without bounty, may be supposed to have increased their exposure to the casualties of battle after they were in the service."

Couldn't Stand Prosperity.—The Franklin (Pa.) Cities says: We are informed that on Monday morning, the 22d ult., a carpenter engaged in rebuilding a portion of the Grant House, received the welcome intelligence that he had fallen heir to six thousand pounds, left by some relative in England. On receipt of the news he determined to have a "spree," and carried out his resolution with such energy that on Tuesday he had the delirium tremens, and, in spite of the best medical care, died on Friday. Among the colored troops the deaths by disease were largely disproportioned to those by the casualty of war. The report says:

"The ratio is no less than 141.39 per thousand, while the highest ratio on the volunteer list is 114.02 (lows) and the general volunteer ratio is 59.22. This disparity is the more remarkable because the colored troops were not so severely exposed during the war to the hardships of field service proper, as is evident from the fact that their battle mortality is but 16.11 per thousand, while that of the volunteer is 35.10. The ratio of deaths by disease among the colored troops compares still more unfavorably with that of the regulars, which is but 42.27 per thousand. AN UNIQUE CARRIAGE.-A colored man drove through the streets of Richmond last Saturday in an open one-horse carriage, made wholly of broom straw, with the exception of wheels and running-gear, which attracted almost as much attention as the arrival of a circus or menagerie. The wheels were sawed out of solid timber, and measured eighteen inches in diameter, and revolved glibly on their well-lubricated axles. The shafts and harness consisted of light material, tastefully adjusted; the body being without top or cover, three feet in length and perhaps two feet in width, consisting entirely of straw interwoven with osiers in a very compact and artistic manner, with a seat of the same material in the hinderpart, and just large enough to admit a man. drove through the streets of Richmond last
